Upstairs the Masons, Jail Downstairs?

"Now listen very carefully," said City Clerk Saidee Van Brower as she began one communication to the council Wednesday evening.

"... a five-story brick building ... ground floor ... offering this space to the city for a city hall and jail ... rear could be used by the police department with space to accommodate four jail cells ..." the letter was from Charles A. Watson, who would erect the building at Fourth and Mission for the purpose also, according to councilmen, of housing a Masonic hall on the second floor.

Rental for the space would be $200 a month which, as Mr. Watson pointed out, would correspond

Ewig, Morehouse Buy Thoburns

Thoburns, old established Carmel realty office on Ocean avenue, has sold its Realty Rental Department to the new firm of Ewig and Morehouse, as of Nov. 1. Founder Jim Thoburn plans to devote himself hereafter to his Dolores street quarters, where P. A. McCreery has charge of the Insurance Department.

Ernest Morehouse for several years has served a growing clientele, first from his Dolores street office, more recently from a new Ocean avenue location. Ed Ewig, popular Carmel "old-timer" and civic leader, disposed of his grocery store to Kenneth Carleton a few weeks ago. In taking over their new program of expansion, both men look forward to the continued growth of a prosperous Carmel area in which they now can better serve their friends and clients. Morehouse, for his part, will continue his personal insurance brokerage business from the new headquarters.

"We are most fortunate," said Morehouse, "in securing the continued services of Elizabeth Harnisch, who, as in the past, will pervise the rental department."

MONARCH SQUADRONS ARRIVE EARLY THIS YEAR

The Monarchs are here, invading the Monterey Peninsula in orange-hued flying squadrons — literally tens of thousands strong. Their headquarters is the grove near Point Pinos, in the "butterfly trees" of old Pacific Grove, and their adherence to this annual flight is one of the world's unexplained natural phenomena.

Technically known as the Canadian Monarchs, these vast hordes migrate southward to their "winter home" from the iced corridors of Alaska and the Canadian Rockies. They complete something over a 300-mile journey before finally settling, most of them, in Pacific Grove.

This year they're early by a month, and this year for the first time sections of the squadron have spread to the Carmel Highlands, where many gardens and trees are also covered by hovering, rainbow-wings.

Each year for 50 years the Monarchs have come somewhat later in Autumn, departing again each

March. To the questions: why do they come this time off schedule, and why come inevitably to the same spot?—there is no scientific answer. Yet come they do, and in all probability will continue for the next half century, — bright squadron on squadron, silently, swiftly — the vanguard, main body and stragglers all arriving within a few days of each other.

To old-timers as well as to visitors, the variegated mass of living color is an experience unequalled in the western states.

THREE SLEEK GREY BATTLESHIPS TOWED INTO PINE CONE OFFICE

Starred in the window of The Pine Cone office this week is an exact replica of the U. S. S. Navy flag ship, the U. S. S. New Mexico. It is the smallest of three scale models loaned by E. C. Poklen to The Pine Cone, to be displayed in honor of the Navy recruiting drive now going on in several states.

Model hulls of the U. S. S. New Mexico, along with those of the U. S. S. California, and the U. S. S. Salt Lake City, were obtained by Mr. Poklen from a former Navy man. With patience and skill, he then proceeded to turn out such perfect pieces of craftsmanship as must be seen to be fully appreciated.

The ships, ranging from 56 to 67 inches, are fully rigged and equipped, with guns, turrets, plane catapults, anchor chains, gang planks, life boats, and even tiny chocks and winches.

Poklen was in Naval service during the first world war, aboard a destroyer. A former automobile salesman, he is now training for defense work in San Jose and San

Lehmann's Concert Tomorrow

The Carmel Music Society opens its 15th winter artist series to morrow night with a recital by the great Lotte Lehmann.

This veteran music group of the Monterey peninsula, numbering among its members those who willingly take over the difficult details connected with a concert season, has not worried over much about the passing of "old Carmel." It has had but one concern; that the concerts presented under its banner be of the highest artistic standard available. And so it flourishes.

A Lotte Lehmann concert carries with it some of the expectant thrill of a first night no matter where it comes on a series, and rain or shine, tomorrow night's audience will be in first night fettle.

Red Cross Ready For Roll Call

As American Red Cross swings into action for its annual roll call, Carmel chapter, Mrs. James C. Doud, roll call chairman, has its organization completed.

Headquarters will be located at the Greyhound office on the corner of Dolores and Sixth streets, where someone will be on duty every day during the roll call period, starting Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

This year the need for funds is likely to be greater than in the past because of the many expanded activities called for by present conditions.

Red Cross, through its nationwide facilities, is promoting the preparation for all possible emergencies and has expanded greatly in the fields of first aid, life saving, nursing, nutrition, among the services of value in national defense.

Carmel Chapter has recognized its responsibilities in this regard and already has trained a large proportion of its people in the

THE DOGS DO BARK

One of the busiest boys about town is BILL McEldowney, the sturdy fellow who has become a familiar sight to the villagers as he rides around on the top of his master's truck. Many a tourist has stopped in his tracks and gasped in awe at the sight of BILL standing nonchalantly atop the cab, never batting an eyelash, as Joe McEldowney's truck ambles up and down hills and around corners at a good clip. It is a startling sight, to say the least, BILL has such a fondness for the truck he even sleeps in it at night.

When BILL isn't busy assisting his master with the trucking business, he is patrolling his neighborhood. BILL doesn't like to have strangers coming around. After dark, he personally interviews every one who comes up his street. If it is one of the neighbors who comes along, BILL greets him with a cheerful "Hello" and "Good Evening", but if it is a stranger, BILL wastes no time in discouraging him to prowl further. BILL gets quite a kick out of bossing the neighborhood.

The local beaux are quite intrigued with that lovely little red-head visiting in town. Her name is GRETCHEN Jones and she is here with her mistress, Mrs. Anthony St. John Jones. GRETCHEN is a Canadian dachshund and her home is in Victoria. She has a deep, rich voice, beautiful eyes and a very aloof manner. She likes the beach, but refuses flatly to play that favorite old beach game, "Pardon Me, But Haven't We Met Somewhere Before?" that so many of our canine beach combbers love to play. Her uncooperative manner has dashed, but not discouraged, the would-be Don Juans who are spending sleepless nights thinking of new ways of penetrating the reserve of the high hat young lady before she leaves for home.

Here's luck, boys!

TATTERS Bryant is one of those patriotic young ladies who feel that everyone should do his bit, so she is doing hers for the Red Cross. Every afternoon she goes down to the Red Cross room with her mistress, Betty Bryant, to sew. TATTERS isn't very good at the sewing so she does her part by amusing and entertaining the ladies assembled there with light and amusing conversation, a recitation or two, and a few well chosen parlor tricks.

TATTERS is very serious about her Red Cross work and wouldn't miss a day for anything. She says it gives her a feeling of responsibility and helpfulness that being a

Stanford Thanks Fire Department

"Doc" Stanford wishes to express his sincere appreciation to members of our fire department for their excellent work and kind assistance, a week ago last night, when they put out the fire in his drug store on Ocean and San Carlos.

There were two alarms, one at 9 o'clock, for a blaze that was quickly extinguished; the other at 11, when a second fire sprang up after the store was closed for the evening.

About $200 worth of damage was caused, mainly to the cigar and candy stands near the front entrance. It was believed that an over-heated light globe was the cause in each case, setting fire to some inflammable merchandise.

When The Pine Cone editor arrived at the scene, a crowd was milling around outside the Ocean Avenue door; firemen were going in and out; a few vague persons were just inside, staring with glassy expressions at the blackened and dripping cigar stands. Meanwhile, through the side door, customers were coming in, and "Doc" was greeting them, and doing business as usual.

Pon Chung got up on a step-ladder and started to remove blue cardboard boxes from danger zones near the light circuit, handing down piles of them so rapidly that the editor slipped, with his arms full of them, and was precipitated into the liquor counter in a wild mess of bottles and toilet articles. Fortunately, only a small container of sherry was broken.

PETITE CASES OF PETIT THEFT

Two cases of petit theft were reported over the week-end. On Saturday, between $5 and $7 was stolen from the car of Miss Regine Berthling.

The other report was made when a blue and white piece of canvas five feet by two and a half feet, was stolen from Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh.

social butterfly, like she used to be, never did.

"Liza in the summer time,
Liza in the fall,
If I can't see Liza all the time,
I won't see Liza 't all."

Most of the romantic young swains about the village share the sentiment of this Old North Carolina mountain song when it comes to that little bundle of Southern sweetness, LIZA JANE Hudgins, lovely young protegee of Mrs. Frances Hudgins. LIZA is the sweetest "lil ole bundle o' coon huntin' beagle you all ever did see." Pretty as a picture, too.

Like so many Southern ladies, LIZA is quiet and unassuming when she is out—but at home she rules with an iron hand. In her melodious voice with its soft Southern drawl, LIZA tells everyone just how everything should be done. And it is done just that way. She has so much genuine charm and appeal that no one minds a bit. That LIZA JANE is a mighty sweet little lady. Sho' nuf!

BUTTERFLIES ALSO VITAL TO NATIONAL DEFENSE

"The only effective spy I ever knew," says Capt. L. S. Shapley of Carmelo, U. S. Navy retired, "was Snake Thompson, a navy doctor.

"He loved snakes and butterflies and always had his room full of bottled worms and bugs. And because of these insect interests Snake got a job teaching in a Japanese University. He used to go chasing over the countryside with his butterfly net and invariably he found the best butterflies flew into the forbidden areas around forts.

"The Japanese got a little suspicious sometimes but when they searched his possessions all they could find was flies and beetles. And so Snake Thompson went on flitting around the forts with his white nets, occasionally sending back a collection of his specimens to the states.

"Snake had worked out his own code of bugs and butterflies and with each collection he sent back a map."

Elizabeth A. Smith Takes Over Blue Bird

The Blue Bird will have the same chef, the same staff, the same prices, but from now on, it will have a new owner. She is Elizabeth A. Smith, and the business that was built into a prosperous institution by Mae Crawford, is now hers lock, stock and barrel.

Miss Smith is a graduate of Simmons College in Boston, where she majored in home economics. She also attended the Prince School of Salesmanship and Business Education.

Later, she taught home economics for the University of Maine, and was director of a women's program over radio station WAGM. She then became manager of a tea room in New England, and has been in charge of the dining rooms at Hotel La Morada, at Rancho Santa Fe.

Miss Smith was first attracted to Carmel because it reminded her of the New England coast towns she loved so well.

Mrs. Crawford has no definite plans, but she intends to spend some of her time taking a rest.

Curb the tendency toward having two dwellings on one lot.

I believe this could best be accomplished by adoption of an R-2 zone, similar to the plan presented by the city council two years ago.

This would provide for a "twilight" zone surrounding the present business zone. In this region apartment houses, two houses on a lot, multiple dwellings, churches, hospitals and clubhouses would be permitted. Stores would still be prohibited.

I do not think there is sufficient room in the business district now to meet the need for small dwellings so that I hope the matter of rezoning will be brought up. When All Saints Church wants to build on its White Cedars property, Ninth between Lincoln and Dolores, it will have to petition for rezoning so the question will be certain to come up then, even if it is not brought up before.

LLOYD LEMON

Sidewalks and stop signs at Sixth and Lincoln streets, that's what we need; but I suppose we won't get them until someone is run over and killed.

LES OVERHULSE
Police Officer

Red zones should be painted, cross-walks should be painted, loading zones should be painted. Commercial vehicles should be forced to park only in loading zones, a 2-hour parking limit should be put on all uptown streets to keep people from leaving their cars in one spot all day. This limit could run from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. without seriously inconveniencing anyone.

GEORGE KARSH WILL PLAY "WHEN LADIES MEET" THURSDAY

George Karsh, probably, will never get a bigger hand in his acting career than he got last night at the conclusion of the rehearsal of "When Ladies Meet" at the Green Room when he consented to play Pierre after urgent persuasion on the part of Virginia Marshall who is directing the play. Even Agnes Fraser's honey-colored dachshund and Shane Ryan's black Scotty lifted their voices in loud acclaim.

In the casting of almost every play one or two roles turn out to be "stickers." Either they are hard to type or things happen to the actors and the parts remain unfilled until the director is at the point of hysteria. In the case of "When Ladies Meet" the role of Pierre and that of Bridget just would not stay put. Three different actresses rehearsed for Bridget but for one reason and another found themselves unable to go through with it until Virginia Marshall thought she would have to play the part herself. But just at that moment Constance Thompson arrived from Hollywood and proved the ideal actress for the flighty dithery Bridget Blake.

But the comedy role of the butler, Pierre, could find no takers. Pierre speaks a fluent French for one thing, and the author of "When Ladies Meet", Rachel Crothers, uses him for comedy relief in breaking up some tense dramatic scenes. A tricky part and vital to the life of the play. But Pierre is now in the capable hands of George Karsh and everybody is happy.

The complete cast includes Louise Welty, Agnes Fraser, Constance Thompson, John Howard, Richard Boone, Eddie George and George Karsh. Ted Kuster will be home this week to add finishing touches to sets, etc., for the performance which opens on Thursday, Nov. 13.

MAYOR KEITH EVANS

Carmel is fine as it is, only I wish we had a few more Republicans.

MRS. F. W. CLAMPETT

Carmel needs to uphold and support the splendid institutions established in our midst for the development of right ideas, such as the churches, schools, art and music societies, the Women's Club, etc., and so place emphasis on the positive, constructive activities. Then I think we would find the objective qualities diminishing.

A LITTLE BOY'S HALLOWE'EN DREAM

In Salinas, on Hallowe'en night, five-year-old Alvin Fam, son of Carmel's Navy recruiting officer, went to sleep sobbing because his leg was in a cast and he couldn't go outside and play with his friends. He thought they'd all forgotten him. But, next morning, when he awoke and rubbed his eyes, he thought he was dreaming. His bed was covered with presents—which his friends had been thoughtful enough to bring him.

Valley Lecture on Armistice Day at 3:35

"Defeatism and Escapism, Two Popular Attitudes in America Today," receive no sympathy from Lorita Baker Valley this month in her talk on World Affairs and Current Literature to be given at Hotel Del Monte, Tuesday, Nov. 11 at 3:15 p. m.

Defeatism, she defines, as that resigned attitude of America being inevitably drowned in the wave of future events, while Escapism is the naive belief that what is happening "over there" can never touch this country.

"Both attitudes are equally bad, wholly fallacious," says Mrs. Valley. "Since 1875, happenings abroad have always affected us. This is no tidal wave of disaster. It has all been caused by men and can be remedied by men. As Machiavelli has stated so aptly, Fate is inevitable only when not resisted."

For further information regarding Mrs. Valley's lectures, phone Kit Whitman, Carmel 1222.

The very latest method of manicuring is done by electricity. Yes, we mean just that, for we had ours done that way last week by Mrs. Pauline Bows of the EL PASEO BEAUTY PARLOR. We can say with candor that it was the pleasantest manicure we ever had—the quickest and most thorough. On first sight the miraculous gadget looks like a small radio, but when opened it displays a set of tools that remind one too much of a visit to the dentist. That is until those tools get to work on you. If you are the sensitive type that loathes the filing process—never fear—you won't know your nails are being shaped—because, believe it or not, they are being shaved away with diamond dust. Other whirling little brushes, sponges, scrapers and what have you, complete the job. It is claimed that this method does away with all splitting and that the scientific massage and clean up tends to encourage a strong and luxurious nail. We are quite prepared to believe it.

School Needs Trees, Let's Help: 50 Cents Will Buy an Oak

Oak trees are acutely needed at the high school to cut off the wind from the playing field.

The school budget cannot be expanded to buy them, even though 100 trees have been offered the school at a bargain price, six-foot oaks for 50 cents a piece.

A spontaneous campaign among students and those interested in the school has raised $30. Another $20 is necessary to obtain the low price. If an additional $50 can be raised, other trees and shrubs may be purchased for correspondingly low prices to improve and beautify our high school grounds.

The Pine Cone feels that knowing of this need, Carmel will gladly make up the $70 necessary for the trees.

Bring your contribution to The Pine Cone office on Dolores street and we will turn it over to the school board.

Remember, small donations will do it. Fifty cents will buy an oak for your school and the entrance to Carmel.

CRACKS DOWN ON SIGNS

Galvanized by recurrent violations of the sign hanging ordinance, the council has determined to be tough in the future.

Henceforth if you hang a sign without a permit, the city building inspector will swear out a complaint against you and you will be prosecuted by the city attorney.

A CITY NURSERY?

Councilman Bernard Rowntree blew up a short but violent thunderstorm that, since accidents in Carmel have increased 50 per cent over last year, the trees in the streets ought to be cut down.

With no decision reached, he went on to suggest that the city economize by starting its own nursery although this would not be necessary unless Carmel plants other varieties of trees than pines.

Declaring it was not a hit or miss affair, Councilman P. A. McCreery recommended that the city insure its future beauty by adopting a definite tree planting program and appointing a committee of prominent citizens to determine upon the variety to be planted.

FIRE PREVENTION OKEH'D

The new Bureau of Fire Prevention, with its chief, who is answerable directly to the city council, was approved on first reading by the council.

Petition of Mrs. Flora Hoffman to close Mission and 3rd so that she could build at the intersection, was denied.

A special meeting of the council will be held at 7:45 p. m., Nov. 12, to hear building petitions.

Lehmann, the One and Only, Tomorrow Eve

All the old names appear as season subscribers, and many new ones that are welcomed to the community. Music Society first nights are friendly, well dressed and gay.

Continuing the second leg of a tour which will carry her thrice across the continent within the month, Lotte Lehmann, distinguished soprano of the Metropolitan, will make her first appearance in Carmel Saturday in Sunset auditorium.

Mme. Lehmann has chosen an unusually varied program for this concert. It is her conviction that an artist owes this duty to the public.

"For me, singing is not solely a way of earning money and gaining fame, it is a part of my life—the finest and best part," says Mme. Lehmann. "I want to enjoy singing for its own sake. It makes me happy when I can sing a really good program, which is also varied."

An artist who has achieved international fame for her interpretation of all forms of vocal composition, Mme. Lehmann will be heard in works which range from the classic simplicity of Purcell's "Dido's Lament" to contemporary ballads. Recognized as the world's greatest interpreter of Lieder, the distinguished soprano will include a group of songs by Schumann, Wolf, Brahms, Schubert and Strauss.

Mme. Lehmann, who opened her 1941-42 season on the West Coast, where she appeared with the San Francisco Opera Company in "Der Rosenkavalier", will travel about 9000 miles during her current tour. Journeying across continent for appearances in several leading eastern cities, Mme. Lehmann has returned to the West Coast for operatic and concert engagements before traveling to New York for her seventh season at the Metropolitan.

Mme. Lehmann's program is as follows:

I.
When I am laid in earth, from Dido and Aeneas (Purcell).
Where's not a swain (Purcell).
She never told her love (Haydn).
Who is Sylvia? (Schubert)

II.

EAGERLY AWAITED BOOK

Poetry lovers, not only in Carmel but throughout the country, will be interested to know that Dora Hagemeyer's latest book of verse, "Leaf and Shadow," printed by the Carmel Pine Cone Press, will be ready for publication about Nov. 15. Butterflies, Dancers In Gayest Festival

With a unique and colorful celebration saluting the return of the Monarch butterflies, Pacific Grove this week-end will be hosts to its neighbors of Carmel and all the Monterey Peninsula, and to hundreds of visitors from throughout northern California, for its third annual Butterfly Festival.

The annual festival centers around a romantic musical pageant, "The Coming of the Butterflies", based upon legends of the Costanoan Indians who once lived at Point Pinos.

A cast of over 150 persons, including several Carmel residents, are participating in this year's pageant.

After a gala opening last night, the festival reaches a week-end climax today. There will be a regular performance at 8 o'clock tonight at the Pacific Grove ball park, on the 17-Mile Drive near Lighthouse avenue, while tomorrow there will be a P-T. A. bazaar, community luncheon, and the two concluding afternoon and evening performances of the pageant.

Miss June Delight of Carmel is directing dance groups appearing in the pageant, while several villagers, as members of the Peninsula Male Chorus, are appearing in singing groups.

The pageant, written and directed by Reginald E. Foster, is sponsored by the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the P-T. A., the schools and local service organizations.

Events scheduled for tomorrow (Saturday) follow:

11 a. m., Parent-Teacher Association bazaar opens in the Indian Village at the ball park.

11 a. m., Children's costume parade out Lighthouse to the ball park.

12 noon, Community picnic at

A BUSINESS THAT WAS DIFFERENT

By CARLOS DRAKE

A CABARET GIRL

The toughest dive in Cracow, as I remember it, was a large hall filled with a haze of tobacco smoke, in which, as far as I could see there were nothing but men. They were rather rough-looking, mostly laboring men, drinking beer, smoking and conversing noisily. I soon made out the entertainment which kept them there—a ballet, consisting of ten girls, dressed in plain black costumes of of cheap material, with black stockings. They were all sitting together at a long table in one corner.

A fat little man in shirt-sleeves whom I took to be the manager of the place, greeted us, and, observing that we were well-dressed, immediately escorted us to a small table next to the girls. I perceived at first glance that these girls were even less fair to look upon than those in the cabarets we had visited previously.

However, our evening must not be a failure, so I told Razanov to order drinks for the ballet troupe. Several bottles of sparkling wine were brought, resembling champagne, which in truth tasted better than what we had had at the other places. When I sipped it, after raising my glass to the girls, several of them on our side pushed down along the bench on which they were sitting, making room for us to join them.

At that moment the orchestra at another end of the room struck up a lively tune, and, to my surprise, a number of women appeared from somewhere. Several men approached the ballet girls, and the floor became crowded with dancers. I looked at Razanov, who was sitting like a wooden image, and, hoping he'd follow my initiative, asked the girl next to me to dance.

Not being able to talk with her in her language, I could do no more than try to keep in step, but occasionally I glanced at her face. She had interesting features, I thought, beneath her extremely bad make-up. Her hair, gathered up in a knot at the back of her head, was of beautiful texture, almost blue black. She had enormous black eyes with long lashes, and full lips, heavily rouged. The rouge disfigured the shape of her mouth, but her teeth, which I glimpsed once or twice, when she parted her lips, were lovely. Her skin, covered with cheap talc, was startlingly white in contrast to her eyes and hair. Her body was slender and well proportioned, and she danced easily and gracefully.

When I led her back to the table, I looked at her more carefully, and to Razanov remarked in English, "You know, she's unusual!"

"Oh, yes," he replied stiffly. "She has a nice figure."

"That's not all," I said. "Examine her face! If you could get her to wash off some of that make-up, and fix her hair a little differently, you'd be surprised."

The girl looked first at me, then at him, with a puzzled expression, during this interchange of remarks, then began to smile.

"Tell her," I said to Razanov, "we are admiring her!"

He did so in his usual smug manner, but after his first words in Polish she burst into pleasant laughter, looking coquettishly at both of us.

"You know, she's wonderful!" I said. "She's ravishing! All she needs is a new dress, and a visit to a coiffeuse. Put her in a stunning gown, say one of white satin, and bring her down a flight of stairs into a ball-room, filled with well-dressed people, and I'll bet you everyone would stop and look at her. And she wouldn't have to wear any jewels!"

"Well, she may have possibilities," agreed Razanov.

He asked her to dance, when the music struck up again, and, ignoring the hopeful glances of a number of other girls at the table, I sat silently watching them. Certainly I had not been exaggerating her attraction. From a distance she appeared extraordinarily lovely. He slim body moved in rhythm with the music. Her small feet in black, rather low-heeled slippers, kept perfect time. Razanov was a good dancer. She was a full inch shorter than he, and they made an interesting couple.

As the evening progressed I grew more and more interested in the girl, and kept calling Razanov's attention to details about her. I could see he was listening, though, outwardly, he didn't loosen up much, and this fact, more than anything else, I think, made me persist. She suddenly ex-

PEACE?

*Shall mills of Time grind but a grist of doom?
Men cry aloud: "Let woe and warfare cease;
Our souls are sick of these. We must have peace!"
But where dwells Peace? Where do her lilies bloom?
Love hath been born, but is there any room
In all Earth's inn for Him, the Prince of Peace
Who taught: "Love's way alone can bring surcease
Of strife, and all that fills the world with gloom!"
Man cries: "Peace! Peace!" and prates of "tolerance"
When 'tis but earth-born comfort that he seeks,
And rose-strewn paths to indolence and ease.
Ruled by self's mandate and beguiled, entranced,
The soul sleeps on. 'Tis tongue of clay that speaks,
And asks gratuitous alms of dove-eyed Peace!"*

FORGOTTEN RENDEZVOUS

*I have lost the way to the river,
I have lost the road to the sea,
And the hills, that used to answer,
Fling no challenge back to me.*

And night, from her starlit crest,
Comes down to its bank in the darkness
And gathers it close to her breast.*

And who, now, remaining to care,
And where is the healing of rivers
Without heart's companionship there?*

cused herself, and I wondered if I had been responsible for frightening her away, but in a few minutes she returned, and we saw that she had removed most of the powder and rouge from her face.

"Let's try to find a table somewhere apart from these people," I proposed.

Razanov acted upon this suggestion with more alacrity than I had expected, and after he had tipped the manager, we succeeded in obtaining one. I looked at a pale blonde on the other side of me, with an over-painted face, and a particularly blank expression in her eyes; and invited her to accompany us. We ordered champagne, a cheap French variety, and, when Razanov had finished a glass or two of it, he began to act a little more human.

He was more attentive to his partner, and she responded quickly to the change in him. He began to converse with her at length, and although I couldn't understand a word, it wasn't hard for me to notice their growing interest in each other. Before long he was holding her hand; and then he had his arm around her. And I thought, "Well! Well! This is an experience for you, old fellow!"

It must have been a novel experience for the girl, too. It wasn't often in a place like this one could meet such a person as Razanov. Occasionally she would cast a shy glance at me, and then smile at him. He looked a little embarrassed, but was obviously enjoying himself.

"What's her name?" I asked.

I don't recall what he told me, but it wasn't very romantic, so I suggested we give her a name. For some reason the name "Corelie" flashed into my mind. It appealed to Razanov, and she seemed to like it.

"To your health, Corelie!" I said, raising my glass.

My blonde partner, sitting bolt upright next to me, had been watching the progress of this affair with increasing boredom. It wasn't very pleasant for her, this preoccupation on the part of both Razanov and myself with her fair friend. Presently she began to yawn, and muttered something about going home with the other girls in the ballet. Razanov persuaded our beautiful creature to remain. But after my partner left, I decided I ought to go, too. I gave Razanov all the money I had in my pockets, except a few zlotys, and urged him to behave himself, not only as became a prince, but also as one who practiced British self-control. I left, feeling sure I had started something diverting, not pausing to reflect intelligently just what I might have started. I only knew that when I saw him again, I'd have some basis for arguing his unemotional ideas into a cocked hat.

Dawn was breaking over the roofs of Cracow, when Razanov returned to the hotel. I had not expected him at any particular time, and had gone to bed and to sleep. He burst into my room, waking me suddenly. His face was shining, his whole manner expressive of a remarkable change in his life.

"My friend! My friend!" he cried excitedly. "The most wonderful thing has happened! I am in love!"

I sat up, shaking my head and rubbing my eyes, wondering if I were dreaming this.

The clouds were disappearing in the eastern sky, and a flood of sunshine filled the room. Razanov was like a lunatic escaped from an Elysian asylum. I remember the look of ecstasy on his face as he leaped around the room, upsetting chairs, jumping over the sofa, grabbing the pillows from underneath my head, dancing off a few paces and hurling them at me with shrieks of laughter. Then he got down on the carpet and executed a number of somersaults which made me gape at him in amazement. Could this be my smug traveling companion, the proper young man, the efficient secretary, the believer in dignity and reserve, who through education in England had claimed to have conquered all reckless impulses in himself?

"I am in love!" he cried. "I am in love!"

Again and again!

And I sat there, and watched him, and thought, "By Golly! This is terrific!"

Corelie

After he had calmed down a little I urged him to describe what had happened after I had left, and expected to hear a lurid tale, worthy of Arabian Nights. But it seemed that my proper young secretary had merely drunk several more glasses of champagne with the girl, and then had taken her home in a horse-cab, during which rapturous journey they had ardently declared their mutual infatuation.

That was all, and I confess I was greatly relieved. As it was I knew I'd have trouble with him.

He would want to continue this affair for which I had been responsible, and my own inhibitions rose, and I began to feel a first tingle of conscience. When he said, "I've invited her to luncheon," I sensed I was in for something.

"Of course, you are coming with us," he added. "Certainly not!"

"But you must see for yourself if she is not an angel!"

Whereupon he began to extol her physical and spiritual charms in such an eloquent manner that it was almost impossible for me to believe I had been the first one to put such thoughts in his mind.

The morning advanced. We could not sleep. Razanov sang joyously as he bathed, and dressed, and prepared for the next meeting with his goddess. While I, carried away somewhat by his transports as well as by my own imaginative conception of the whole business, treated him quite differently from the way I had expected. Somehow my desire to "kid" him about his display of emotion had vanished. My conscience was overcome by an immense curiosity to see how Corelie would look in the clear light of day.

Towards noon we hailed an open fiacre, and drove to the rendezvous.

We traversed a number of narrow and squalid streets and came finally to an ancient, battered building, with an inner court in which was an old wall, overgrown with moss and ivy, and about which, on the broken flagstones, refuse was scattered. It was dark and dingy. Out of a number of dusty windows which frowned upon us, washing was hung out to dry. There was an odor of decay; but above us the sky was bright and clear and blue.

We waited. Razanov, his hands in his pockets, paced nervously up and down, whistling a little tune. I wondered if this were really her address and whether she really intended meeting us.

Then, after an interminable period during which my doubts increased, we suddenly heard a ring of laughter, and from out of the glare of the street into the courtyard Corelie came running, dressed only in a torn skirt, and cotton blouse, her legs and arms bare. She was wearing a pair of old felt carpet slippers, much too big for her, and as she came into the court-yard and stumbled slightly, she lost one of them.

She and Razanov immediately threw their arms around each other so naturally that I looked at them in astonishment. Then as suddenly she broke away from him, and approached me shyly, holding out her hand.

There was no doubt about it, she was lovely! There was no make-up on her face that morning. She looked as though she had just a moment before bathed, for I remember that beads of water glistened on her glossy dark hair, and her skin had the appearance of having been quickly dried. She had probably realized that she was going to be late, and had washed hastily, thrown on whatever clothes happened to be handy. She explained all this to Razanov in rapid Polish, her face flushed; and urged us to wait a little longer until she could run back to wherever she lived and make herself presentable. Her lack of self-consciousness when she first came, now changing to embarrassment at being seen by us, only half dressed, and with her hair down, was refreshing. Razanov was saying to me: "You see, my friend!"

STOP THE FIGHTS! LEASH ALL DOGS

Nov. 5, 1941.
Carmel

Sir:

Since the canine population of Carmel is apparently equal to the human, a few regulations for the conduct of dogs and their owners would seem imperative to the health and happiness of all concerned.

As the owner of a dog and a member in good standing of the S.P.C.A., I feel I have a right to speak of the necessity for dogs in the business district to be accompanied by a responsible adult and to be leashed.

The private axe I am now grinding was handed to me this morning by a large German police dog who attacked, unprovoked, my own Springer spaniel. My dog is smaller and is of the Milquetoast family in the first place. Being attached to my dog by a stout leather strap, I very nearly assumed the innocent bystander role in the brief fracas. Nobody got hurt this time, happily. But if the other dog had been on a leash the incident would not have occurred.

A city ordinance would clear these recurrent "situations" with harm to no one including the pets.

—Rosemary McClintock.

Sir:

I was interested in reading the opinions of a number of our citizens as to the needs of our community. Some were fine, others, at least so it seemed to me, quite beside the point! One thing is needful. We need the free, generous and cooperative of all who live in Carmel and environs. Idle comment, often quite incorrect in their conclusions, help no one and only arouse in those who are their victims all the basic instincts which make for obstinacy and non-cooperation in as far as such is possible within the law.

There is strength in union and those who love Carmel must organize to an extent to help keep Carmel as Carmel. I feel certain that if a representative group of citizens coordinated its efforts—with the right motivation, we could accomplish what now seems impossible.

I am reminded of a Litany which I saw two years ago in the porch of an exquisite Church in Essen, England. Seemingly, by observing the countryside, it was not needed there or had done its work. Well we need it here—but not only prayer—but work to carry out its sentiments:

"From all destroyers of natural beauty in this parish and everywhere;

From all polluters of earth, air and water;
From all makers of visible abominations;
From jerry builders, disfiguring advertisements,
Road hogs and spreaders of litter;
From the villainies of the rapacious and the incompetencies of the stupid;
From the carelessness of individuals and the somnolence of local authorities;
From all foul smells, noises and sights—
Good Lord deliver us."

By M. RANDOLPH

Just got back from San Francisco again... hm! Thinking the fresh air would do me good, I got up early on Sunday morning and wandered around the waterfront in the rain. There were not many people around but I found a little crowd silently watching a large freighter pull out into the fog shrouded bay. They were mostly women, waving handkerchiefs which gradually became limp as they soaked up the rain.

The ship's deck was crowded with semi-dismantled attack bombers, army trucks and tractors. On her bow and on her stern they had built gun platforms and you could plainly see the sinister shapes of six inchers, sulking beneath their wet tarpaulins. Where she was bound for, I could only guess, but judging from the few that were on hand to watch her departure and say good-by, her sailing date must have been kept a secret till the last moment.

With the women there were a few children who at first were eager and excited, but the vessel became a mere shadow in the mist and then suddenly was gone altogether. Then the children became as silent as their elders. The group stood there for a while, looking out over the dark waters, then they got into their cars and quietly drove off the glistening wharf.

This was nothing remarkable. It is happening every day in every U. S. port. But some of the ships do not come back.

The strikers are still noisily picketing in San Francisco, looking as well fed and happy as ever. Nobody pays much attention to them. One hotel owner told me that since they struck at his establishment his bar has made more money than ever.

I also talked to a striker who insisted that he had a right to profit from the Emergency. He said that under the Roosevelt-Perkins regime, labor had made a greater progress than during the previous 60 years. (Well, Frankenstein created a monster, but eventually it turned on him, didn't it?)

That reminded me of a strike I saw in Paris in 1938. I spoke to a worker there, too. He said: "We also must profit from this munitions business. Anyway, Leon Blum made greater gains for us workmen during his reign than all the other prime ministers put together during the last 50 years. We are not going to sacrifice anything so that they can have a damn war." I wonder how that guy feels now?

Back at Ord they are getting ready for a new show, though this one, will be minus a wizard. However, instead it will have Gene Raymond, (who's got Jeanette Mc-Donald), the man who is going to organize the whole thing. With such an experienced trouper it should go off with a bang. There is no reason why not. The army is just full of theatrics.

The tennis courts are beginning to take shape here and pretty soon the fight will start to see who will play on them. There will also be some argument as to who will keep them in shape, I suppose.

With these last rains we have had a slight preview of what will happen when the wet season really starts. It seems that the drainage at Fort Ord is not exactly what it should be and we will all have to learn how to swim unless the Engineers provide us with boats. Personally I'm getting a pair of water-wings... bubble, bubble!

Many Selectees Would Train to Become Officers

Selectee-soldiers will comprise 62 per cent of the total number of soldiers selected to attend officer candidate schools now starting, according to Brigadier General Joseph O. Donovan, state director of selective service.

This announcement follows a nationwide survey of the selectee-soldier status and his relative advancement in the armed forces of the United States, and recent official forecasts indicate that selectees will constitute a majority of men selected for training schools.

According to the survey, there is a perceptible increase in the number of selectee-soldiers coming up for officer candidate schools. Selected by the War Department on merit basis, graduates from the schools will be commissioned as officers.

The report shows that where 94 selectees were graduated from the first officer candidate schools just concluding, approximately 1625 are starting to school this month. It is estimated that 2600 enlisted men will take the three-month courses starting this month. Of these approximately 650 will be selectees of four months service selected by commanding generals of replacement training centers. Of the remaining 1950 officers candidates, about one-half will be selectees, the other half members of the Regular Army and National Guard.

Graduates of officers candidate schools who do not desire a year's active duty as second lieutenants are awarded certificates of capacity for appointment as second lieutenants in the Regular Army. They then are returned to their respective organizations to complete their periods of service, as enlisted men.

Thousands of visitors are expected at Camp Roberts on Tuesday for the "V" Day celebration and "open house." A program is planned consisting of war games and various military demonstrations.

Magazines Wanted for Ord Soldiers

If you have a car, and go to Monterey occasionally, you can perform a definite service to our Army, by dropping in at the Mission Cleaners and taking a few of the magazines collecting there, to the Army Recreation Headquarters in Monterey, the old Pacific House, on Calle Principal, diagonally opposite the Custom House. From this point they are distributed to the hospital and the libraries of the various units at Fort Ord.

The Carmel group which has been soliciting the magazines, and arranging for transportation to Fort Ord by army truck, is having difficulty getting such transportation now with so many troops south on maneuvers. The Army Hospital, the libraries, and the recreation centers have said they definitely want them. Right now it will be a real service to get these magazines to points where the Army can more easily pick them up. If four or five Carmelites would make it a point to pick up one good-sized bundle a week, and take it to the Monterey Army Recreation Headquarters near the old Custom House, the problem would be solved, and Mr. and Mrs.

Watson, of the Mission Cleaners, who have kindly offered a front corner of their shop to the donors, will not have to clear a path for their customers.

If you think you can help in this way, phone in your name to Shelburn Robison's office, 860-W—or if this is not convenient, just stop in at the Mission Cleaners and take some magazines to Monterey Army Recreation Headquarters as above.

ARMY AIR PROGRAM BEING STEPPED UP

The War Department recently announced that the present 54-group combat plane program is being expanded to provide organization of 84 combat groups—a virtual doubling of Army air strength. The new program calls for an increase in Air Force enlisted personnel to 400,00 by next July.

Among the 693,948 selectees inducted into the Army by last July 629,293, or approximately 91 per cent, completed grammar school education or better.

U. S. Navy Recognizes Patriotism

This Young Man Is Receiving a Badge of Honor for Having Enlisted in His Country's Defense

Commander F. K. O'Brien, of the Navy Recruiting Service, is shown above placing the new Navy badge on the lapel of an applicant. All ambitious young men who apply for service in Uncle Sam's "Two-Ocean" Navy, whether accepted or not, are given this token of patriotism.

The Navy needs men to man its new ships. It needs hundreds of additional sailors; but many more Navy men are required for work in Navy dry docks, machine shops, ordnance depots and other shore posts to keep the new ships in action.

"Never in the history of the United States has there been greater opportunity for loyal Americans to serve their country and build their futures than right now," Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox recently said.

For example, it is possible for a bright young man to increase his pay seven times during his first enlistment and he can earn as much as $126 a month. This monthly figure is actually worth much more when it is remembered that the man has few living expenses and is provided with the finest of medical and dental care.

He has all his food and lodging, and also his original clothing outfit is provided by Uncle Sam free. In addition there are free sports and entertainment; there is travel and adventure in colorful places—a thing few civilians can afford.

HERE ARE A FEW QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS:

Does the Navy give a man vacations with pay?

Yes. All men in the Navy are entitled to a long leave with pay each year of their enlistment.

When I have received a U. S. Navy rating in one field, may I change to another field?

Yes, if you are qualified. And you will not lose either your rating or your pay.

Are there opportunities for musical instruction in the Navy?

Yes. The U. S. Navy maintains a School for Musicians in Washington, D. C. Young men who qualify for this schooling are given a 16-week course.

Where is a new Navy recruit sent for his first training?

He is sent to one of four Naval Training Stations in the United States: Newport, Rhode Island; Great Lakes, Illinois; Norfolk, Virginia; or San Diego, California.

What is the next move after I have finished my training at one

"You Just Can't Tell About Orient," Says Capt. L. S. Shapley

"You may bet your bottom dollar," declares Capt. L. S. Shapley, U. S. N. retired, "that anyone, who says he can tell you what's going to happen in the Orient, can't. No one can," assures the man considered Carmel's leading authority on the far eastern situation.

"China may win the war tomorrow, or Japan may. Your guess is as good as mine."

Capt. Shapley, who lives down on Carmelo and Tenth, used to patrol the Yangtze river as commander of the flagship Brooklyn. His chief duty was to protect missionaries, he says.

He observed the devious and inexplicable ways of the Orient for many years and yet the more he saw the less, he felt, he knows. Once a hostile army was advancing on Shanghai. Chiang Chi Shek was within the city with a more than adequate defensive force so that there was no alarm until suddenly it was learned that Chiang, with the entire treasury, was aboard a boat bound for France.

"You might have thought," said Capt. Shapley, "that would have been political suicide for Chiang, but no, not in the Orient. In a year he was back again with a new army starting up where he left off."

"You just can't tell what is going to happen over there."

PUBLIC LIBRARY DAY—

Friday of Book Week, Nov. 7, has been declared Public Library Day. It offers an opportunity for all members of a community to visit the public library, to make out registrations if not already enrolled, and to discover all the services rendered by this group of public servants. At the Harrison Memorial Library, the board of trustees, Miss Niles, the librarian, and the staff will all be at the Library Friday to greet you and help all visitors "discover the library."

"Strictly Personal", by Somerset Maugham. An account of the small things that happened to the author during the first 15 months of the war.

"Viking Book of Poetry", edited by Richard Adlington.

"The History of Scandinavian Literatures", by Frederika Blankner.

"Carl Sandberg", by Karl Detzer. A study of Sandberg's personality and some analysis of his work, particularly that on Lincoln.

"Hear! Hear!" by William Freeman. An informal guide to public speaking, with illustrations by Gluyas Williams.

"Field Guide to Western Birds", by Roger Peterson. Should anyone find a copy of this book without a rightful owner, it is probably the one removed from the Library last July before it could be put into circulation; it has no book pocket, but it is stamped with the Library seal on the title page and is numbered.

Fiction: "Corporal Cat", by Martin Flavin; "The Sun Shall Greet Them", by David Rame, pseudonym of A. D. Divine.

How Does Your Garden Grow?

VILLAGE ABOUNDS IN AIDS FOR BETTER GARDENING

By Mrs. F. W. Clappett,
Chairman, Garden Section
Carmel Women's Club

In the Oct. 31 copy of The Pine Cone was an interesting resume of the convention held at Hotel Del Monte of the California Garden Club, Inc. In reading this fine article it seemed to me important that we should support the various activities of this organization, and I am mentioning a few.

We should subscribe to the magazine, "Golden Gardens." I never had a magazine that gave me more inspiration for my garden; and more interesting knowledge of California gardening.

We should give support to the Red Cross planting plan for army cantonments. If you go out to Fort Ord and see what a barren place it is, you will realize the beneficial effect of a little beauty.

We should help with the new building to house the Alice Eastwood Herbarium in Golden Gate Park, where we can learn anything we want to know about our flowers and plants.

But with many, the work nearest the heart is to express ourselves in the arrangement of our garden, and to see that we have expressed our best and highest nature. Not too formal; not too carefree. But to find a middle way in which we can paint a picture joyous and gay in form and color.

Gardens Sunny and Shady

Order should be our next thought. We should be tidy, neat with our working equipment, a place for everything, also neat in our planting and arrangement, not putting shrubs in with annuals, or coarse flowers in with delicate ones.

We should have a forward outlook, building always for better effects, what has proved to be good this year can be amplified next year, and what has been disappointing can be omitted next year.

It is fun to have different types of gardens. We can have a woodland garden in which we may put plants that like acid soil, such as azalias, rhododendrons, columbine, camellias, heather. These should be in a shady place.

And we can have a sunny garden, in which petunias will love to grow, and Glory of the Sun, violas, verbena, the new yellow watsonia, fresias, and even tuberose; and certain kinds of lilies.

Have walks that lead to some point of interest, so you can say to a friend, "Come with me and see my old-fashioned garden," or "let us go down and sit by the pool"

MIX BULBS AND ANNUALS WITH FORETHOUGHT

By Mrs. James D. Bishop,
Practical Gardening Expert

Having, I hope, gotten your fall clean-up well under way, and most of your perennial beds planned, as suggested last week—we will look ahead to our spring display of bulbs as well as to a few annuals for winter and spring bloom.

Early this month most of our bulbs should go in to insure success. The following are most popular and make a wonderful show of color, as well as excellent cut flowers. Tulips, daffodils, narcissus, jonquils, crocus, freesias, ixias, watsonias, sparaxis, montbretias, baby gladiolas—and of course, anemones and ranunculus, unless you prefer to obtain these as seedlings or "down there is my bird bath in the sun, where the birds have such a good time."

Paths should follow the line of least resistance, as if they were worn naturally by constant use.

Local Helps for Better Gardening

We are greatly blessed on the peninsula with many helps toward better gardening. I might put first of all the class in adult education conducted by Alex Eddie at Sunset school each Tuesday evening at 7:30; you do not have to go beyond Mr. Eddie, with his wide experience in the botanical gardens in London, and his California experience at Del Monte, to learn of California gardening.

I should mention next the meetings of the Monterey Peninsula Garden Club, held every third Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the "House of the Four Winds." Mrs. William O'Donnell, president, provides programs that we cannot afford to miss. (This month's meeting is to be on the 14th on account of Thanksgiving).

And again the garden section of the Carmel Women's Club offers most helpful suggestions, as well as social contact with other gardeners. There we can catch some of their enthusiasm and profit by their experience. At the next meeting at Miss Ann Grant's residence in Hatton Fields, Nov. 12, 10:30 a. m., there will be a speaker from Vetterle and Reinelt, Capitola, Ross Webster, who is to talk on begonias and delphiniums. With all these advantages, there is no reason why we should not have beautiful gardens here in Carmel.

We might also look forward to doing something in the way of raising vegetables, in accordance with the defense program.

from your nurseryman, as suggested.

Bulbs for Borders

The Muscari, or grape hyacinth makes a very attractive border—also Ornithogalum (star of Bethlehem) are lovely—especially the improved O. Cereceanum.

Some very beautiful effects may be obtained by broadcasting seed of Virginia stock, baby blue-eyes, swanriver daisies or alyssum (white or lilac) as a cover for the bulb beds.

It is also well to plant a few hardy annuals to cheer us through the winter. Pansies, primula malacoides, nemesia, stocks, snapdragons, wallflowers, calendulas, English daisies, and violas are a few of the best.

Cinerarias Thrive Under Pines

In our usually mild climate we can use cinerarias as best for shady spots in any season as they thrive under our pines where many plants will not grow.

A nice rain is fine for your garden—refreshing everything—but remember it takes a good soaking rain to sink into the ground, so water your bulbs and plants. Also watch things planted under heavily foliated trees and the eaves of the house, as they often suffer for lack of water even though it is raining.

Carmel Chest Drive Goes Over Top, Town Thanked

The president of the Community Chest, Robert Stanton, and Kit Whitman, campaign manager, wish to thank all Carmel for their generous support to the Community Chest.

Especially are they anxious to thank Mrs. Allan, who did such excellent work as Carmel chairman. Her sub-chairmen also did splendidly, Mrs. Thomas Mulvin, with the main residential district; Mrs. James Doud, Hatton Fields; Mrs. Betty Carr, Carmel Woods, Mrs. Ray Brownell, Mission district and the Point, and Harrison Godwin, business district, were all wonderful.

Carmel, again, did its share, in fact went more than over the top in all districts. Except for the fact that the mop up group is still in progress a complete set of figures could be given. These will come later.

The Junior Community Chest was also a great success. The school children from all over the peninsula raised a donation of $195. Mrs. Hugh Dormody is to be thanked for her splendid work on this drive.

South Sea Thriller Combines Lamour, Hall, Volcano

The never-to-be-forgotten stars of "Hurricane", Jon Hall and Dorothy Lamour, are reunited again—another example of how popular demand rules Hollywood.

Starting Sunday at the Carmel theater, the romantic team will be seen in "Aloma of the South Seas", technicolor story of a tropical island.

The lure of the South Seas—an eyeful of Lamour glamor—the sleek physique of Jon Hall—an exciting, red-blooded tale climaxed by an erupting volcano that explodes into a million colors—these are the highlights of this outdoor spectacle.

On a Tahitian-type island, Jon Hall, educated son of the native chief, battles for the girl he loves. Lynne Overman, Katherine DeMille, Fritz Leiber and Dona Drake round out the cast which includes hundreds of brown-bodied extras and Tahitian dancing girls.

The great climax of the film is the shattering eruption of the island's volcano, a natural spectacle of disaster topping anything of the sort ever filmed.

Friday and Saturday the Carmel theater offers the latest of the Abbott and Costello pictures, the side-splitting, uproarious comedy, "Hold That Ghost". In addition to Abbott and Costello, the Andrews Sisters, Joan Davis, Mischa Auer and Ted Lewis and his entertainers are featured.

Bardarson Urges Support of Red Cross Juniors

By OTTO W. BARDARSON

We would wish for the quality of mercy in the heart of each child and young person. The desire to do for others in a practical manner the things that will benefit and help, that is the basis of the Junior Red Cross program.

Useful gifts are prepared and sent to children in countries in distress and in these days it means almost every country in the world. Training is provided in first aid, accident prevention, in nutrition, in home nursing and special emphasis is placed on planning for disaster preparedness. This program fits in perfectly with our national defense program and because of the present emergency the Junior Red Cross will take its place with the Senior Red Cross in becoming the greatest voluntary agency in coping with distress, disaster, or problems of defense adjustment. Sewing and knitting classes will prepare articles for war relief; articles will be made for Army, Navy, and veteran's hospitals and for the boys in the service.

The students of the Sunset school are fully organized under the faculty advisorship of Mrs. Clarisse Duygou and Arthur C. Hull, principal. The students have had candy sales to raise money, have made articles for distribution to the needy, and for the current year are launching out on a full program of activity.

Carmel high school students during the past year provided entertainment for soldier groups and organized a first-class disaster and relief committee. This year, under the faculty advisorship of Miss Hazel Sener, the Junior Red Cross committee plans an ambitious program. In November, the high school drama group will give a special performance of Booth Tarkington's play, "Seventeen", for Fort Ord soldiers. Miss Edith Cox heads the high school group.

The immediate program confronting the Carmel schools is to carry out a plan of checking on common home hazards. Each student will be provided with a check list so that he can report his findings to his parents. The greatest number of accidents in homes and on farms are preventable and this venture of the students to stimulate people to be more alert and careful should be encouraged.

Now—more than 12 million telephone calls a day!

THE number of telephone calls we handle on the Pacific Coast has mounted to over twelve million a day!

Each telephone call must be made to order—on a moment's notice...manufactured and delivered in a matter of seconds.

That's a big job—but it's only part of the job we're doing today as the West hits its stride on National Defense work. Add to this a program of plant additions, this year, in excess of $75,000,000 of which expenditures for new construction alone will be over $62,000,000.

We are making an all-out drive of man power, materials and money to supply the kind of telephone service that will help the Pacific Coast speed its part of America's biggest job.

Betty Works in Gallery—

Working at the Courvoisier Gallery in San Francisco now is Betty Work. Guthrie Courvoisier, owner of the Gallery, is married to former Carmelite Moira Wallace. Frank Work is home from the east, where he spent six weeks of vacation.

Leger Loved Carmel—

Fernand Leger writes that throughout his whole trip to California, Carmel was the most charming spot he visited. He thoroughly enjoyed our lovely coast town, and hopes to return again soon.

Matthews Home—

Not covering much ground, but having a delightful vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Matthews have just returned from their trip, which kept them three weeks in the south. They stopped through Palm Springs, and the Woodlands, where they lodged at Wissahickon, coming home through San Francisco.

Here from San Francisco—

Mrs. Barbara Klotz is in town for a couple of days, as houseguest of John and Pat Cunningham. Friends of Nadja, Barbara's ten-year-old daughter, will be happy to hear that she is out of her cast and able to walk around again.

Legionnaires Invited—

Chaplain Jason T. Harbert, a past department chaplain of Colorado Legionnaires, will speak on "The Unfinished Armistice", Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at the 17th Infantry Chapel. All Legionnaires and their families are especially invited.

Special music will be provided by John Burr, Carmel's noted basso. The sounding of taps will close the service.

Mildred Petty Weds Sims—

News comes from Wedding Manor in Los Angeles that Miss Mildred Petty, daughter of Thomas L. Petty of Carmel, became the bride of Haldean Ross Sims of Maywood, Calif., on Nov. 1, at 8 p. m. The groom, who is now doing publicity for local firms in Maywood, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sims of Springfield, Ill. Rev. Julius Du Bose officiated at the candlelight ceremony, with 15 guests attending the rites, as the bride and groom stood beneath silver wedding bells. The altar was decorated very attractively with salmon-colored gladioli, and palms.

At Home in Eugene—

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Jacoby returned to Eugene, Ore., Sunday, after spending two weeks in Carmel, where they visited with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jacoby. They also visited a short time at their ranch at Payette, Ida., on their way north.

Musical Art Club News—

The Musical Art Club will present the next concert of the season on Nov. 13 in the lounge at Hotel Del Monte. That will be Thursday evening at 8:30 sharp. At this time the club is fortunate in being able to secure two newcomers to the peninsula who are possessed of unusual talents and experience, thereby assuring the members of another program of exceptional interest.

Melvin Bandell has recently arrived here from Chicago where he was principal cellist with the Chicago Civic Symphony Orchestra. Mme. Rashelle Doree, chanteuse et diseuse, is from the French Theater, Theatre d'Art in San Francisco, having appeared in concert in New York and other cities in the east. While in Carmel, Mme. Doree will be coaching at the John Burr Studio of Singing.

The accompanist, Gerita Hanna, is also a newcomer, being the very talented wife of an army doctor at Fort Ord. Mrs. Hanna is accompanist in Carmel for Walter Kelsey's studio, having done concert work and teaching in San Diego and in Los Angeles.

Musical Art Club members are urged to interest their friends in joining the club before this fine concert. The club hopes to enlarge the membership sufficiently to insure the high standard of programs which have been planned for this season. Those interested in membership may phone Mrs. Lawrence Lyon, Monterey 4590, who is membership chairman, or call any director of the club.

New England in the Fall—

Mr. and Mrs. Hurd Comstock returned recently from their six-week trip through the New England states. Riding through Kansas they had an auto accident, and after slight injuries were taken care of, bought a new car in Chicago to continue their trip. The Comstocks found New England in its full beauty, especially Vermont and New Hampshire, where the fall coloring was the most beautiful that it has been in years. They returned through New Mexico.

The Bogarts plan to spend Christmas in Los Angeles.

Locker, who were here last Fall, and have just returned from Honolulu, to be here indefinitely.

Dr. Ott Speaks for P-T. A.—

A small group of music-loving friends enjoyed a quiet evening at the Fritz Wurzmans last Saturday night. Cakes and coffee went well with the music, generously supplied by Marjorie, the charming hostess, who played several compositions by Mozart, David Marrs, who majored in Chopin, and John Burr, who sang a group of Brahms songs.

Mrs. Florence W. TenWinkel is back from San Francisco, where she spent the entire 10 days in the hospital. The doctors report that her ankle is on the way to recovery, and that she'll soon be up and around.

Pleasant Journey—

Miss Ruth Nielson spent the week-end packing for her trip east; and left early Monday morning by train. Miss Nielson, desk clerk at Highlands Inn, will spend two wonderful months traveling, resting and visiting her family in Chicago. From there she'll go south, coming home through Florida, Arizona and Death Valley.

Jacqueline Smith Cagwin, daughter of the Howard Smiths, now in Honolulu with her lieutenant husband, Leland G. Cagwin, has been written up and photographed in the November Your Charm Magazine as a representative American army officer's wife.

The last meeting of La Collecta was held at the home of Mrs. Howard Timbers. Mrs. Lawrence Melrose talked on her trip through the Redwood Highway into Oregon, and gave an interesting life study of Luther Burbank. Mrs. Timbers' mother, Mrs. John Hopkins, and Mrs. Arthur Templeton were invited as guests of the club. The next meeting will be held Nov. 19, at the home of Mrs. Ines Warren. Members will use the Thanksgiving theme in reading poetry and entertainment.

Sunset School Notes

Polite Mr. Brosnan, one of our custodians, was cleaning the blackboard when he bumped into something and said, "Excuse me!" It was a life-sized old witch that we had in our room for Halloween. Chuck Roeth, Grade 6.

Halloween Echoes—

"I made 60 people walk the plank!" boasted Pirate Patricia Merryvale as she joined the long line forming on the lower playground at Sunset School last Friday afternoon. Led by Principal Hull and the drummers, the Halloween parade marched across the playgrounds and wound its way back along San Carlos street while children and parents watched. An orderly crowd it was in spite of the fact that queer things walked in that motley group—a cowardly lion, an old witch with kid gloves, a green lizard whose tail had been stepped upon and was being carried in the arms of its owner, a silver-winged moth, clowns, ghosts, skeletons, and cowboys. Tiny "Colonel" Allen Knight, when asked what a good soldier should do, replied, "Run!" A student body meeting with Robert Doerr's 7th grade entertaining was followed by room parties throughout the school.

Fifth Grade Party—

A party without good things to eat wouldn't be much fun, so a collection box was made and enough money for ice cream and prizes was collected. Almost everyone wore costumes. Billy Dufer, who came dressed as "Susan" was the funniest. Joan Alice Dillingham made a fine lion. Our former dignified president, Patricia Timbers, won first prize imitating an old hen calling her chicks. Eva Gravelle played an imaginary piano while Edward Seifert did a Highland Fling.

Miss Stafflebachs Class.

A toothless, grinning hag with a wart on her nose, wearing a tall, pointed black hat and a black gown, stood behind the teacher's desk in Room 6 all Friday afternoon, holding a ruler in one hand and an arithmetic book in the other. Where was Mrs. Jordan? Right there with us racing cardboard turtles on strings across the floor and helping to put on Pinocchio's nose. We had ice cream and plenty of cookies.

A colored movie, "Meat and Romance" was shown to the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades in the Sunset School auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 30 by Ernest Calley. The film was educational and interesting and enjoyed by all. Mary Laird, Grade 7.

November—

November is an important month in Mrs. Lockwood's room. There are 33 children in our room and ten have birthdays in November. There are two birthdays on the first and two on the seventh of the month.

Deborah Geering, Grade 3.

Slides—

On Oct. 29, Miss Norman's fourth and fifth grades came to Mrs. Jordan's room to see some slides which were shown by Mr. Elkins. We enjoyed the picture of Washington, D. C., and especially the Mall, which is a great park leading from the capitol to the Potomac river. He also showed slides that were made by children, some in colors and others in pencil. We hope to make some pretty ones, too. Betty Dougherty, Grade 6.

High School News

Dr. Taubles Speaks—

The first meeting of the executive counsel of the Junior Red Cross was held last Friday. We had as our guest speaker Dr. Taubles. Dr. Taubles enlightened us a great deal on the works and problems of the Red Cross. We hope in our future meeting to have other guest speakers as fine as Dr. Taubles. Our hope is that we will establish a Junior Red Cross this year, one that we can be proud of and that will set a record for other new students to follow. This is all up to us, the new executive counsel.

The members of the counsel are as follows:

President, Edith Cox; vice-president, Bill Dougherty; secretary, Frances Passailaigue; treasurer, Judith McMahon.

The membership chairman is Rosemary Powell; social chairman, Grace Penha; program chairman, June Petty; publicity chairman, Betty Powell. Miss Sener was our advisor for the meeting.

—Edith Cox.

Spanish Club Dance—

The advance Spanish classes (3rd and 4th years) will give another Spanish Club dance next Friday. The baile will be held in the High School music room at 7 o'clock.

Under the guidance of Miss Gilmert and Mr. Craig they will dance La Jota, La Conga, and the Tango.

Only members of the third and fourth year Spanish classes and their guests will be admitted. Las muchachas will all be in costume. Admittance price is to be 30c.

—Betty Sloan.

Captain of Smallest Globe-Girdling Boat to Speak Monday

The Carmel Forum will present Captain Dwight Long and his colored motion picture, "Seven Seas on a Shoe String", Monday evening at 8 o'clock in Sunset auditorium.

This program will combine pictures of faraway places with the interesting account of the adventure told by a young man who sailed alone around the globe on a 32-foot ketch, the smallest craft ever to achieve the feat.

The photography is said to be excellent, in fact, Edward T. Lowe, Paramount director, says that the film "approaches perfection in points of interest, pictorial beauty, artistic composition, and the most perfectly exposed color film I have ever seen."

Some of the places shown are New Guinea, Java, New Zealand, Arabia, Spain and England. The travel covered a period of five years, and included such exciting adventures as being captured by a Franco gunboat and held a prisoner of war in Spain. This was only a short time after a narrow escape from being mined along with the H. M. S. Hunter in Gibraltar harbor. Earlier he had been attacked by Bedouin bandits in the Red Sea.

The Carmel Forum programs are free to all adults. Children will be welcome to see this picture if accompanied by their parents.

Sidney W. Fish of Carmel, writing to William M. O'Donnell, acting editor of the Monterey Herald: "Excepting this last paragraph, your editorial gropingly expresses the confused opinion and feeling of this country . . .

"Your editorial culminates with a threat of a crackdown and dire consequences for all those who do not dumbly, blindly, follow Editorials and Administration."

Oh, let's stop mincing words.

EDITORIAL PEARLS

Frank L. Lloyd in his column for The Cymbal:

"Living as we do beside the greatest ocean in the world, we have the ocean for our nearest neighbor.

"The Pacific stretches away over the horizon to Japan, the Philippines, New Zealand and Australia, and China and the Siberian coast; northward to the Aleutians and southward to the coasts of South America and the Antarctic."

And from the same column:

"Partly deaf pupils may be regarded as 'stupid' by teachers and parents and therefore suffer another harm. Ten million Americans are hard of hearing."

Eleanor Minton James in her art column, "Northlights":

"Janie Otto prefers not to have any further discussion about her resigning from our Carmel Art Gallery. So we shan't say anything here. But like everyone else, we feel very strongly about the gallery being without Janie and Clay . . ." etc., etc.

From our own classified advertising section:

"GEORGE HEE GASHIE—A-1 Nippon dealer in chinchillas, pongee pajamas and tame and wild skunks. General delivery, Carmel."

We were just looking for a squirrel.

SURREALIZING HEIGHTS OF LOWER ART (& WIT) FORMS

I once knew a man who was a surrealist painter. He did 20 self-portraits, and tried to get them hung in a gallery somewhere. Most of the gallery curates admitted they'd like to see him hung, but they refused to let them make an exhibition of himself.

He started out in art the hard way. The first piece of instruction he received from his teacher was, "use plenty of paint on your palette." Well, for six years, he yawned in technicolor and used colorful language, and then one day he discovered the man had said "palette", and not "palate".

Today he is doing a picture for the National Elevator Company called "The Evolution of Man", or "Even the Best of Us Have Our Ups and Downs." This may be his big chance. There's one thing about working for an elevator company, if you get in with the right people, you'll soon reach the top.

—Dawn Overhulse.

"If Dawn'd been punished For all the puns she's said She would not have a puny shed Wherein to lay her punished head."

(Ed.'s note, with due apologies to the gentleman who wrote this first.)

Overheard at the post office:

"My last week's Life is three days overdue," said the girl apologetically to the clerk. "Could it, do you suppose, have been mislaid?"

"Let's wait," replied the clerk.

Jon Hall co-stars with Dorothy Lamour in "Aloma of the South Seas" which will play at the Carmel theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"maybe it will turn up!"

—Alice Johnston.

As he left the theater after seeing, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" (that picture about erroneous re-embodiment), Louis Conlan quipped:

"Gosh, maybe I'm really Rosceli."

EXCITING SOCIAL NOTE

From the Laguna Beach Post:

Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Pendleton of 1845 Catalina street celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary on Tuesday, Sept. 16 with an informal breakfast party at Birds cafe . . . attending the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Pendleton.

Note in Freda Fischer's social column in the Herald:

"Miss Mary Stewart (of Carmel Valley) is on vacation and with her mother, they have attended the opera and hope to visit Yosemite."

And other points of scenic grandeur?

Was that our Bernard Rowntree, commissioner of police, that we overheard at Steve's the other night saying:

"What this town needs is 20 men who don't mind spending a night in jail or lynching a few people. We might get something done then. Find 'em and we'll send the policemen off to a convention."

Wolo Wows 'Em

Chalk up another one for a Pine Cone member. Remember Wolo, who was staff artist all last summer? Well, he has come forth in a burst of brilliance, as can easily be seen by anyone who cares to view his new book, "Amanda," at the Carmel Library.

Amanda is a book for kiddies, but it will doubtlessly tickle the funny bone of any grown-up who reads it. The story is of a little snake with a ribbon in her hair, a bell on her tail, and who is just as good as she is beautiful.

There are many small illustrations, and several large ones all in color. Stop in at the library and see the fine poster Barbara Wood did of Amanda for Book Week.

Our New Russian Has a Passion for Seals

By MARY DRAKE

Carmel is the richer this week, having gained a new restaurant and a new citizen who is interesting, charming and talented.

Madame Varipaef, who has just opened the Russian Inn, was formerly owner of the famous Russian Tea Room on Russian Hill in San Francisco and two other similar restaurants on Sutter street.

As a bride she and her husband were caught in the Bolshevik revolution, became separated from her parents, and only months later after an escape through Turkey to Paris, were they and her family, who had fled through Siberia, reunited in Palo Alto.

But their struggle had only begun. The men went into factories, Madame Varipaef and her mother sewed, taught French. However, the mother was a remarkable cook and the fame of her dinners spread among the neighbors until she was urged to serve meals commercially.

It was not long before they started the San Francisco venture.

During the years that it was under Madame's management it flourished. But the work of supervising kept an exuberant woman largely underground. Seldom was there an opportunity for Madame to see the sun, or even to know what the weather was like outside her kitchen. On the rare occasions when she could get away she came to Carmel to paint and renew her spirit.

"Point Lobos," she said, "is the loveliest spot on earth, and the only place I came near to committing murder."

At that I laughed, but she assured me seriously:

"No, I really might have—I was looking at the wonderful water when a strange woman tapped me on the arm and begged for the recipe for Russian meat balls—I would have thrown her over, too, but the water was too good for her."

So Madame has come to Carmel at last to enjoy "a life" after years of gruelling work.

"Does it sadden you," I asked, "that your country is in such trouble?"

"I don't care at all," was her answer. "Russia no longer exists. Even a post card so addressed would not be delivered in the U. S. S. R., my church is dead there, and I have difficulty in understanding the new language and the books."

"How is that?" I asked in astonishment. "Surely a generation could not change the tongue of a great people."

"Oh, but it has!" she exclaimed, "the country was taken over by gangsters and the language of the underworld became official—it would be as though 25 years from now American school children had forgotten the word gun and only used the word 'gat', and the language of Al Capone was spoken in the White House."

I confessed that this was a new point of view that had never occurred to me.

"No," she continued, "America is my country. My son is in the Army. I had hoped he would be at Fort Ord but they sent him to Texas."

Madame Varipaef has three hobbies: painting, collecting stained

DOUGLAS SCHOOL NOTES

Visitors of the week at the school:

Walter H. Leimert of Los Angeles arrived for a day with his daughter, Patricia. He entertained Pat and Mrs. Vera Shephard and her daughter Patricia at dinner Saturday evening at Hotel Del Monte.

Miss Louise Young, a former student; her mother, Mrs. Lindquist and Miss Young's fiancé, Jack Hoar.

The elementary school gave a very delightful Hallowe'en party for the high school girls Friday afternoon. Games and relays were played in an hilarious fashion during the sports period, after which glass and seals. All the roccoco designs brightening the walls of the Russian Inn were done by her, so the painting was easy to understand.

"But seals," I asked, "where do they come in?"

"Oh," she laughed, "I adore seals—I love to hear them bark and see them play. I've never patted a seal but one day I shall. My one ambition is to have a swimming pool with two seals for pets, then I shall be quite happy."

I looked from the gay walls of her new restaurant, to Madame Varipaef's strong, cheerful face, and I thought about the seals and the incident of the meat balls, and I thought:

"Carmel is going to take you to its heart."

Automobile accidents in Carmel have increased to 118 in the first 10 months of the year. In all 1940 there were but 80.

Bible selections will include the following passage from Romans 12: 1, 2: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "Mankind will improve through Science and Christianity. Mental Slump Good Sign—in Adolescents

If adolescent Junior suddenly loses his hard taught habits of cleanliness, don't be alarmed, it's perfectly natural, Nelson B. Sewell, vice principal of Salinas Junior High School, told the Carmel P-T. A. Tuesday evening.

To the gathering in Sunset auditorium, which was well sprinkled with fathers as well as mothers, Mr. Sewell spoke at length about the years between 14 and 19.

"The spurt in physical growth that comes in early adolescence slows the child down mentally," he said. "The child who had all ways rated high in his high school work may go into an apparent mental slump."

All this is quite normal but if the child loses his mental inquisitiveness then there really is something wrong with him and he should be taken to a doctor.

"He needs parental affection but not the demonstrative kind."

"He also needs to believe in something stronger than himself: he requires religion of whatever creed."

"Let him choose his own vocation—even if he vacillates."

"Parents and teachers can help most with a sympathetic understanding, with praise rather than censure."

LOCAL ARTISTS TO PLAN CARMEL OBSERVANCE OF NATIONAL ART WEEK

John Cunniffingham, Carmel chairman for National Art Week, invites local artists to meet with him at the Art Institute Saturday at 11 a. m. to discuss plans for the week's observance here.

The Standard Course class, under Mrs. Alice Crittenden, will meet at the Monterey County Bank Nov. 13 at 2 p. m. and thereafter each Tuesday and Thursday, 2 p. m. and 4 p. m. This course requires 10 meetings of two hours each.

"And I've had two pay raises in only eight months! I'll say you can't beat Uncle Sam's Navy!"

YOU couldn't ask for a greater thrill than that which a fellow gets when he comes back home wearing a trim Navy uniform. The folks crowd around. They all want to know where you've been, what you've done. And man, do you have stories to tell!

GREATEST LIFE IN THE WORLD

You're proud. And you should be. For you've been leading the greatest life in the world. And it's a thrill to tell about it, too. Or stepped out in front of your shipmates to receive your first promotion.

And with that promotion came an increase in pay. And there were more to come. Second Class. First Class. And then Chief Petty Officer. Many might even go to Annapolis. Or to Pensacola with the flying cadets!

Exciting? You bet, and fun too. Something doing all the time. Real he-man's stuff. Boxing. Baseball. Football. Swimming. AND MOVIES... previews, too!
